

Harlem Holdup Men Get $3,800 Payroll; Escape

Police Learn of New Case as 4 Boys Plead Guilty of $63,000 Securities Theft

Stolen Bonds Recovered

Auto Aids Uptown Bandits; Three Men Held for Other Robberies in City

While the police were congratulating themselves yesterday because they had arrested five youths charged with holding up and robbing sixteen-year-old Milton Strohm of $63,000 worth of securities in a hallway at 61 Broadway, another successful holdup and robbery of a $3,800 payroll occurred in Harlem. Other crimes of a similar nature were reported to the police yesterday in Manhattan and Brooklyn.

From Gustave Mignone, twenty years old, of 770 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, arrested late Friday afternoon, Detectives Mayer, Brown, Hyams, Gillfillan and Maringolo learned that Mignone's brother, Theodore Mignone, sixteen years old, had planned to rob Strohm. The detectives waited nearly all night outside the Mignone home for Theodore to come home. They arrested Anthony, another brother, seventeen years old, before midnight, and then another youth, Edwin Andreas, nineteen, of 169 Ainslie Street, was rounded up. He told where Theodore might be found.

The detectives found him at 4:10 Saturday morning in a lodging house at 339 Broadway. He had been tipped off that the police were on his trail.

After that the detectives arrested Lester Osterstag, seventeen, at his home, 336 Humboldt Street.

Detectives Find Plunder

At first Theodore Mignone denied all connection with the theft, but later, the police say, he admitted it, and declared that he had himself been robbed of the securities. Finally he told the detectives the loot could be found in a shop owned by Andreas's father, at 271 Manhattan Avenue, Brooklyn. There, buried in an old water trap, the detectives found it. The bag, as Theodore said it would be, was found in a pile of debris on the uptown platform of the Cortlandt Street station of the Seventh Avenue subway. He had thrown it there after escaping from the building following the attack on Strohm.

Theodore admitted he had been discharged three weeks ago from the brokerage house of Henry Staler, 66 Broadway, for fighting with the cashier. He had been making $12 a week, he said, and by playing the bucket shop, he said, he had made $18 or so a week extra. After his discharge, he said, he had planned to "put the thing over" alone. He said he took his brother and Osterstag and Andreas into the trap. They were all employed as messengers in Wall Street.

"I struck Strohm with a wire-bound insulation. I didn't mean to hurt him very bad, and I'm sorry if I did," he told Mayer and Brown as he was being arraigned before Magistrate Simpson in the Tombs court.

He said Osterstag was in the building when the attack was made, but he did not take part in it. All that Andreas did, he said, was to take charge of the loot and hide it. Gustave Mignone, his brother, Theodore said, was to sell the securities and divide the proceeds. The three Mignones and Osterstag, when arraigned in the Tombs court, pleaded guilty of robbery and grand larceny. Andreas pleaded not guilty. They were all held in $10,000 bail each for the grand jury and taken to the Tombs in default. There they declined to discuss their cases with reporters.

The three Mignone boys are the sons of Charles Mignone, a retired baker. There are seven children in the family. The father said Theodore had recently suffered from a "fever" and must have been mentally deranged.

The detectives reported that all the stolen securities were recovered, and that the Broad Street Hospital, where young Strohm was taken, suffering from a fracture of the skull, it was said he would probably recover.

Harlem Robbers Make Escape

The Harlem robbery occurred yesterday just before noon. Two messengers employed by the Sinclair & Valentine Dye Company, of 611 West 126th Street, were entering the office of the company, just east of Broadway, with a $3,800 payroll, when they were confronted by robbers, who thrust revolvers under their noses and demanded the money. Before either could make a sound, the robbers had snatched the money, dashed outside and escaped in a waiting automobile.

The men then ran outside, screaming. Police and pedestrians came running up to them and a passing automobile was commandeered and went in pursuit of the robbers, but the car vanished toward the Fort Lee Ferry and was soon out of sight.

Acting Captain Richard McKenna, of the West 126th Street police station, assigned twelve detectives to the case. The messengers were Anthony Match, nineteen, of 367 Edgecombe Avenue, who has been with the firm four years, and Henry Ruhmmeister, twenty years old, of Yorkville. He has been with the company two years.

According to the police, Michael Lo-reddo, eighteen, of 2349 Pacific Street, Brooklyn, has admitted participating in three holdups recently, and has implicated Tony Bagdonowicz, of 542 Sackman Street, and Alphonse Mito, of 127 Stone Avenue, all of whom are held in the New Jersey Avenue police court for assault and robbery. It is alleged they held up and robbed Isidore Bass, a tailor, of 131 Williams Avenue, and Benjamin Hoffman, a grocer, of 109 Sackman Street. Hoffman was struck with a blackjack. They are also accused of having held up Harry Cohen, of 526 Williams Avenue, and robbed him of a watch and chain. Magistrate Simpson in the Market Police court, yesterday declared that millions of dollars' worth of merchandise had been stolen in the last year by dishonest chauffeurs and truck drivers. He said he regretted that the District Attorney's office had not been able to furnish evidence against

The City's JAR

CHAMPIONS of the virtues of Spain and Peru clashed in a Brooklyn boarding house yesterday. Spain's representative was Raphael Fernandez, twenty-six, while Alberto Rios, twenty-two, fought for Peru. Both lived at 13 Hamilton Avenue, and for days have regaled their fellow lodgers with heated debate. The climax came yesterday.

Fernandez walked into the Hamilton Avenue police station holding one hand over the spot where his nose used to be and carrying the dislodged portion of that member in the other hand. He said Rios had bitten it off. He was removed to the Long Island College Hospital, where surgeons will try to graft a new nose for him. Rios was arraigned in the Adams Street Court yesterday and held in $1,000 bail on a charge of mayhem.

Neutral neighbors are giving their phonographs a chance for the first time in a week.

A PLOT to lengthen the workday of American chickens was hatched yesterday at a meeting of the New York State Federation of Poultry Associations at the Commodore. Professor James E. Rice, of Cornell University, was the arch conspirator. The plan is to install electric lights in chicken coops so that hens will not knock out work at dawn.

He said tests had shown that 100 chickens residing in a home fitted with modern lighting conveniences laid 235 dozen more eggs in a given time than 100 old-fashioned chickens. The idea of the electric lights is to give the chickens more time in which to "fletcherize" their food so that they will not get up in the morning feeling all played out from their digestive organs having had to work all night.

SPECTATORS in the Jefferson Market Court yesterday were treated to the spectacle of a magistrate citing a policeman's horse for resourcefulness which resulted in the capture of a burglar suspect.

Magistrate Grovel was the judge and Piedmont, ridden by Policeman William Lenihan, the animal thus honored. Lenihan told the court he had chased John Ganey, a forty-year-old man, colored, of 250 West Forty-seventh Street, who was suspected of trying to rob an apartment at 350 West Thirty-eighth Street, into a saloon in Thirty-eighth Street, leaving the horse at the door.

"Piedmont," the policeman said, "simply wouldn't let anybody in or leave the place, and he remained on post at the door until I had caught Ganey on a fire escape in the rear." Ganey was held in $2,000 bail.

JAMES B. REGAN, proprietor of the Hotel Knickerbocker, filed yesterday in the Supreme Court his answer to the $10,000 suit brought by John V. Bouvier, 3d, who alleges he was assaulted in Mr. Regan's hotel. The plaintiff is the son of John V. Bouvier, Jr., a lawyer.

"The supposed assault and battery," said Mr. Regan, "were justified in that, while in the defendant's hotel, the plaintiff frequently walked and skipped across the lobby, occasionally doing a funny little skip or hitch with his left foot, attracting much attention and disturbing and annoying guests; he was stopped and in a rude and unseemly manner stared at the greatly embarrassed ladies who were in the lobby and grill of the hotel."

When he loudly resented being told to cease, it is related, the plaintiff became abusive and was "gently escorted from the hotel with no more force than was necessary and proper to remove the plaintiff."

JOHN SINNOT and Frank Byrnes, two fourteen-year-old Brooklyn boys, had no idea it was so far to the West.

They were no invitation to sit down when Patrolman Gorman took them into the police station at Belleville, N. J., yesterday. Papa Sinnott, at 276 Prospect Place, and Papa Byrnes, at 1708 Eighth Avenue, were notified. The Byrnes begged the police to let them proceed on their journey.

"We guys are out for big game," he said, "and there ain't a thing we want in Belleville."

Note: There was a "Wild West" the offenders, so they were discharged.

Puts Blame on Police

"Your Honor," said Assistant District Attorney Hogan, "the fault lies with the police. They have not produced sufficient evidence to warrant the complaint. I am pressing their charges. It is squarely up to the Police Department to get this evidence."

Perry Stewart and Louis Turner, of nowhere in particular, were arrested yesterday morning in Riverside Park, near West Seventy-eighth Street. Patrolmen Lasky and O'Connell, of West Sixty-eighth Street station, found a loaded revolver, fifty-two skeleton keys, a hacksaw and a green mask on Stewart, and another loaded revolver, a cold chisel and a razor on Turner.

In the pocket of Stewart's suit appeared the name of Police Sergeant John J. Dillon. Stewart said he and Turner robbed that official's apartment a month ago. The men were locked up and their stories will be investigated. They said they came to New York from Texas.

Charles Deirrell, of 61 Hamilton Place, Washington Heights, was held up and robbed of his wallet and a $100 diamond ring yesterday morning.

LIEUTENANT "JIM" EUROPE'S 360th Regiment Band, which jazzed delight into the hearts of the French and terror into the souls of the Germans, is going to tour the country.

As a starter it will give a concert at the Manhattan Opera House next Sunday afternoon. This will be free, and for men in uniform only. The public may buy tickets for a concert that evening.

The road tour opens in Easton, Penn. Lieutenant Europe expects to convey relief to tired business men in every large American city.

ABOUT sixty soldiers, air mechanics from various squadrons detailed for work at the Aeronautical Exposition, paraded yesterday with complaints at the food they were receiving. One of the men accepted by his comrades as spokesman told the officers of the different sections that the food they were receiving was worse than all that had been said about the rest camp at Brest, France.

After proper inquiries the men were told that better rations would be issued to them as soon as possible. As a special reward for working Sunday they were told they would be given an extra helping of pie at the Sunday dinner.

MRS. SARA G. FRIEDMAN, woman Democratic leader in the 6th Assembly District, The Bronx, wants a public apology from John J. Daly, the man Democratic leader. Her grievance is that Thursday evening when she entered the ballroom at the dance of the Star Democratic Club in utter ignorance even that there was to be a grand march, there was John J. Daly leading a grand march with Mrs. John J. Daly instead of with the woman leader of the district.

"Mr. Daly ignored me entirely," said Mrs. Friedman. "It was understood that there was to be no grand march, so you can imagine how I felt. I was humiliated and embarrassed by being forced to take the tail end of the march. Mr. Daly says it is a case of love against politics. Well, love has no place in politics."

Fifty women voters of the Democratic ticket in the district have held a meeting and voted that Mrs. Friedman is exactly right. Mrs. Daly was not at the meeting.

Dr. Samuel Slato, of 75 McKibben Street, Brooklyn, was held yesterday for examination Wednesday on a charge of manslaughter, the result of an operation alleged to have been performed upon Mrs. Bessie Brown, of 96 Cook Street, who died at St. Catharine's Hospital Thursday.

Mrs. Elizabeth Herbert, widow of Michael Herbert, a traffic policeman killed by a truck on Williamsburg Bridge last August, obtained a verdict of $15,000 against the Every Ready Trucking Company yesterday in the Supreme Court in Brooklyn.

The World War Veterans' Association 1449 Broadway is distributing to ex-army and navy men entitled to them form letters with which they may apply for $60 bonus allowed under the new revenue tax law.

Fred Kirshenbaum, sixteen, of 2211 Surf Avenue, Brooklyn, was found hanging by a rope attached to a closet shelf yesterday. His mother said he had been in ill health.

Fifty men and women, delegates of strikers in the clothing trades, hurriedly abandoned a meeting at 22 West Seventeenth Street yesterday when fire broke out in a button factory beneath. One was injured. Hundreds of women in an adjoining building were brought to the street by elevators.

57 Y. M. C. A. Workers Dead in War Service

FIFTY-SEVEN Y. M. C. A. workers lost their lives overseas during the war, according to a list made public yesterday.

Thirty-nine died of disease; the rest, including ten women, were victims of bombs, gas, machine guns or gas fever. The minor casualties totalled fifty-five wounded by machine guns, shells, gas and motor transport accidents.

The records show that 152 "Y" workers were cited for distinguished service. Sixty-three of these were decorated, thirteen receiving the French war cross, three the Distinguished Service Cross and thirty-eight the Italian war cross.

Petti-bloomers are the new fascinating variant of the petticoat, and are so practical, that women say they will never be without them again. Pictured here are two new models in silk jersey that are especially original and charming.

(A) This sketch shows a style which clings closely and tapers at the bottom with pleated flounces giving the utmost slenderness of line. The flounces have a diagonal design in ribbon of contrasting color. The color combinations are many and charming and include green and maroon, black and lavender, copenhagen blue and yellow, purple and green, and green and rose.

(B) This model has a bit of a flare to its flounces for women who want to combine the comfort of petti-bloomers and the frills of petticoats. The flounces are banded with satin ribbon of a contrasting shade. The color schemes are taupe and purple, French blue and green, blue and cherry, black and royal blue, green and red, and purple and gold.

Many attractive styles in full bloomers come at various prices, in striped tub silk and taffeta.
